Setting Up

The Paulin Ensemble has no hardware to assemble — the modules simply sit against one another. Arrange the pieces, push them flush together, and settle the cushions.

- 1 Unpack each module and remove all wrapping. Place them on a clean floor — ideally a rug — in your intended layout.
- 2 Push neighbouring modules firmly together so the sculpted edges meet and the seams align into one continuous form — there are no bolts or clips to fasten.
- 3 Because the modules only rest against each other, set them on a rug or add felt grip pads underneath to stop them drifting apart in everyday use.
- 4 Map the layout with painter's tape first if it helps, then plump the cushions and dress the covers so the seams sit straight.

Notes:

The Paulin Ensemble is built from identical square modules combined into square, rectangular, sectional, or all-over layouts. Lift to rearrange any time — and photograph a layout you love so you can recreate it later.
